Jay and I have the privilege of serving Wycliffe PNG by working at a regional center (mini-center in another region of PNG) as managers for a couple weeks. Someone described center managers as the cog in the center of a wheel to keep the translation work going. The managers provide logistics as translation teams go to and from village, buy their supplies, help them with repairs, provide a place for them to live while in transition. They work with the national staff employees maintaining the finances, grounds and the rooms.

We are serving in town of Alotau to fill a two week gap between managers. It is on the ocean quite a ways from Ukarumpa.
