

May 2017

For most of you in the States May is the time for flowers. Here in PNG Flowers are out all the time. Being close to the equator we do not have the weather seasons like the US. Also since we are below the equator our days are getting shorter. Still, the school term is wrapping up. Boys softball is done. Tonight we went to see a play that the parents put on for the High School Seniors. Our High School graduates will be heading out of country in a few weeks. The season is changing even if our weather is not:)

(Picture Jodi took on our walk home from the play)

I wrote a new blog about a reality that happened last week.
You can read about it on our web page.
